Chinese porcelain moon flask

Chinese porcelain moon flask, twin scrolled handles, blue and white decoration of flowering peony, unmarked, 28cm, old damage and repairs.

There is a crudely reglued chip to the neck. All-over heavy crazing lines, some of which have developed significantly to be considered hairlines, including across the main face to one side. They have started to become quite ingrained with dirt, making them more evident. Both handles have heavy firing lines surrounding the places they join the main body and neck. There is old residue surrounding the baseline and underside of the base. Private local consignment.
